Washington, DC- Congressman Steve King released the following statement to commemorate the 236th birthday of our nation:

"Tomorrow as celebrations of Independence Day light up our great nation, may we remember the sacrifices of those who have fought to protect our Liberty," said King. "Let us also look forward to the great future in store for our country. In our words and deeds, we can honor our Founding Fathers by showing our personal allegiance.  With God given Liberty as its foundation, I strive to uphold the Constitution in my daily dealings in Congress, and I pray that the American people will remember the source of our freedom on this day, and every day."