

Congressman King recognized for work on behalf of 24th Street Bridge in Council Bluffs

Washington D.C.- Congressman Steve King (R-IA) released the following statement after being honored as a "Champion of Transportation" by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and AAA. King received the honor for working on the federal level to advance the reconstruction of the 24th Street Bridge in Council Bluffs. Nancy Richardson, Director of the Iowa Department of Transportation, presented King with a framed photo of the 24th Street Project during an award ceremony in Washington D.C.

"It is an honor to be recognized as a 'Champion of Transportation' for my work to promote transportation improvements in Council Bluffs," said King. "Improving the Interstate system in and around Council Bluffs is essential because it will help to promote continued economic growth and development in this important hub of commerce in southwestern Iowa. The reconstruction of the 24th Street Bridge is a significant component of these ongoing efforts."
