

Congressman King: "I don't say we need to build 2,000 miles of a fence, a wall and a fence; I just say build it until they stop going around the end."

Washington D.C.- Congressman Steve King (R-IA), Vice-Chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration Policy and Enforcement, today stated that recent violence along the United States/Mexico border demonstrates the need to secure the border with a "fence, wall and a fence." King made his comments during an appearance this afternoon on the Fox News program "America Live." During the segment, King was asked to respond to a recent incident in which a U.S. Border Patrol Agent used lethal force to defend himself after individuals he was attempting to apprehend for illegally crossing the border attacked him.
